1 _____

Amy Ripley met her husband, George, when she was seventeen. They both worked in an office. Amy was a secretary and George was the office boy. Then the war started and George went into the army. Amy didn't see him again for the next fifteen years.

2 _____

Before the war finished, Amy's parents went to live in another part of the country and Amy went with them. She wrote letters to George but she didn't get any letters from him. She was very sad and she thought he didn't love her any more. But Amy was wrong. George wrote to Amy every week but his letters went to the wrong address. George thought Amy wasn't interested in him. When the war ended, George looked for Amy at his old office but she wasn't there.

3_____

The war ended in 1945 and in 1946 George went to university to become a doctor. But he didn't forget Amy. He still loved her. He put advertisements in newspapers and shops in different towns but he didn't find her.

4_____

Finally, George became a doctor. He went to work in a small town in the north of the country. One day a nurse telephoned from the hospital. ‘Hello,’ she said. ‘Can I speak to the doctor?’ George was very excited because he knew the voice. It was Amy.
